During her voyage from Niuguo on the night o the 20th test, the Stechuen came into violent collison with the stenmer Express, within a few miles of the Roggeds. The latter was out down to the water's edge, and her fore compartment immediately filled. A cry was raised that she was sinking, and the Szechuen was requested to stay by her and prepare to receive her 300 Chinese passengers. Boats were lowered to effect this, but owing to the high sea it was considered that the transhipping would be attended with serious risk as each nassenger shewed so great disinglination to be parted from his huggage that it would have been necessary to use force to have got them into the boats, without their boxes. The two Captains accordingly decided to run for Pirates' Buy, where the Express could be beached. This was enfely accomplished; and at daylight vesterday morning be transhipment of the passengers and haggage to the Szechuen was commenced, and by the aid o some fishing boats was completed at noon, withnut an accident.
